Weston High School

IMAGE '67

Throughout 1967 we, as Americans, have had to consider--U.S. launches new offensives in Vietnam! . . .Powell to be ousted from Congress? . . .Two indicted in LSD raid!. . .Aluminum prices hiked!. . .Volpe elected first four-year governor!. . .Chaos in Red China!. . .School Committee approves Metco Program!. . .

These issues, however, have been only a part of the past year for Weston High School Students. As we reflect upon 1967, our thoughts mirror other events: the Thanksgiving victory. . .new freedom in the cafeteria. . ."What did you say sin θ/2 was?". . . snatches of "Georgy Girl" in the locker room . . .the long night before the English paper was due ("if only I had started it sooner!") . . .the arrival at school at 8:30 to spend Saturday morning filling in 257 little squares for an IBM machine. . .vintage movies in Room 007. . .late afternoon rehearsals for BECKET, closely followed by intense preparation for OKLAHOMA. . .a new library growing even as we get off the bus each morning. . .

1967 has been an exciting year for the world and for Weston High, fast-moving and many-faceted. Despite its intangible nature, the year merits an attempt to portray it. Consequently, while admitting the impossibility of its being the experience, we offer you this book, in the belief that it reflects the true image of '67.

DEDICATION

For eight periods a day you descend in "one swell foop" upon those who haven't learned their "vocab." After having someone's "ears on toast" because of a forgotten i-stem, you stop to help the ones who are "out in left field with the sun in their eyes without a glove." Your enthusiastic love of language makes Caesar an adventure and inspires those of us who are not so inclined to decline nouns of all "ilks." With your imaginative approach to teaching, you fill our "little pink brains" with songs to remember which verbs take the dative, memory tricks to tell the difference between "num" and "nonne" and gimmicks to recognize grammatical "horses of all feathers." Just as you can organize the clauses of a lengthy sentence with an easy familiarity, so can you calm a confused class meetingor aworried exam-taker with a casual touch of warm humor. Your sincere concern for us and your belief in our potential gives us the spirit and the courage to carry through a project. And as the greatest gift of all, you offer a high standard of moral and intellectual excellence, providing a demanding but rewarding challenge for each student. In appreciation of and in gratitude for your abundant, unselfish giving, we, the Class of 1967, dedicate our yearbook to you, Mrs. Margaret Fernald.

UNDERCLAS

SMEN

Following in the footsteps of the Seniors, the underclassmen create a rotating foundation of faces and minds in the high school. Ever-changing and ever-active, they reflect the mobile quality of our school years and of our time.

JUNIORS

"Upperclassmen at last!" cried the excited Juniors as they sat back September 7, and wondered how they had ever made it. That year as "lowly freshmen" and those leisurely days as carefree sophomores were then but fond memories in their past. They couldn't sit back for long, however, for this year promised them many challenges to meet, obstacles to overcome, and new concepts to explore. With these opportunities came the many rewards and satisfactions to which their newly acquired status entitled them.

A rude awakening was what most juniors called the realization that college was just around the corner. New words, such as "P.S.A.T., S.A.T.," and "Achievements" crept into their vocabulary. "When in doubt, go to Guidance" became the popular slogan for all confused juniors. Grades took on a new meaning as they realized that each "A" meant one more step to the "college of their choice."

Who will ever forget those trying moments, when they were told they could use notes for the history exam, and discovered they didn't have any? "How many math problems have you done?" became a crucial question, while an apple and five words a day kept both the juniors and their vocabularies healthy. Influenced by their reading matter, the juniors gave up meat this year, especially sausage, and many are still wondering if one can really wander through the sewers of Paris.

Outside the classroom their most important project was the junior Prom. To make the Prom a success became the ultimate goal for each junior, and it was while striving for this goal, while sharing all the joys and frustrations of the Prom, that the juniors became truly unified.

Their hard work does not stop with the junior year, however, for, as individuals and as a class, the Class of '68 still has "many promises to keep, and miles to go" before Graduation Day.

SOPHOMORES

The Class of '69 came into their sophomore year with a new confidence and dignity. Right away schedules began to get crowded, as they started a year of greater academic responsibility. Although they lost two study periods to Speech I, they got a lot of laughs perfecting their delivery with the aid of bells and tape recorders. The sophomores were led out to the Nature trails in Biology class to "discover the hidden treasures of Mother Nature," and scientific spirit emanated from the labs in the form of giggles, screams, and formaldehyde odor. Geometry brought plane struggling and some students seriously mixed up their alphabet: MAOBCF=BQRTPZ? An escaped raccoon invaded the English class in Room 19 that was introducing the sophs to an Utopian unit, including Animal Farm. It did seem like 1984 in some of the toughest courses in the school---Algebra II, Physics, Latin II.

Reaffirming their reputation as the "spir" class, GO SOPHS GO posters were proudly displayed on the walls of the sophomore homeroom corridor, inspiring the class to win the Annual Yelling Contest. Their abundant energy and talent contributed to the success of their 700 Fund project and their Unicef slave auction. The 69'ers put in a great amount of time and work on the decorations for their dance "Kaleidoscope," and although committee meetings often turned into hack sessions, the dance was a great success. Many sophomores earned recognition through their efforts in "Becket;" others were members of Varsity and J.V. teams. One vivacious group of sophomore girls decided to cheer the J.V. football team out of its beginning slump to victory.

The Class of 1969 is known for its enthusiasm and solid corps of workers, the 'spir'-head of the school.

FRESHMEN

Stephen Whitman, Pres.
Raymond Nied, V. Pres.
Susan Landers, Sec.
Dana Callow, Treas.

Surrounded by seniors trying to remain completely oblivious, juniors feeling for the first time their superiority as upperclassmen, and sophomores no longer at the bottom of the ladder, the Freshman Class of 1970 stepped confidently into the first stage of a high school career. They were amazed by lockers that really locked, a cafeteria where the light of day was always visible, and schedule cards that looked more like a page out of their math book than a list of courses and teachers. The freshmen were new to the system but they caught on quickly and found their new life a welcome relief from Junior High. High pitched bells and high piles of homework became two familiar images of the new routine. Freshmen homerooms were notoriously difficult to control during conference period as the freshmen put up a fight before submitting to senior proctors.

Once more a large number of students invaded the sophomore domain of Biology, Geometry, and French II classes. In their English courses, enlightened by Edith Hamilton's anthology of myths, they could be seen silently memorizing Latin & Greek names for the gods and goddesses of the ancient world. Students tried to decide whether they identified more with Holden Caulfield or "Le Petit Prince," and decided that Franco-American relations would definitely be improved by English translations of certain French texts. Mid-year exams left all freshmen truly astonished by the freedom they were now awarded as high school students.

Diving into high school social life as enthusiastically as they had the academic activities, the freshmen sponsored a successful dance as their contribution to the Unicef drive. They out-cheered the juniors and seniors at the first pep rally, and appeared prolifically and with grrr-eat spirit at football games. Their enthusiasm and drive support their "Great Expectations" for Sophomore year.

Sports, instead of a calendar, mark the changing seasons at Weston High. The transition from field hockey to lacrosse sticks, from football uniforms to tennis sweaters, evidences the year's progress. We all participate, whether we cheer or play, and our winning teams are the spirited result.

FOOTBALL

Finishing the season with an over-all 8-1 record, this year's Weston's Wildcats commanded the Dual County League football championship along with the pride of their school. Although Al Lazzari was injured early in the Thanksgiving game the efforts of co-captains Dave Locke and Jack Rizzo, seniors Charlie Dolberg, Chip Forbes, and John Perry, and juniors Carroll McCarthy, Mike Jones, and Sandy Townsend, proved the basis for the strong teamwork that produced the exciting victory of 27-20. Jack Rizzo's exceptional scoring and rushing records not only helped to win the Wayland game but also gave him the DCL scoring crown and an average of 132 yards rushing per game. Except for the disappointingly close defeat by Bedford the Weston Wildcats had the satisfaction of playing a highly successful and spirited season, as Coach Harris said, a season of "just plain good football."

VARSITY FOOTBALL Row 1: 60 Doane Arnold, 80 Chip Forbes, 66 Bub McCarthy, 74 Charlie Dolberg, 36 Alan Lazzari, 72 Dave Locke - co-captain, 45 Jack Rizzo - co-captain, 12 John Perry, 75 Andy Lambie, 55 Jeff Sugden, 88 Sandy Townsend, 35 Bruce Campelia. CROSS COUNTRY

The Cross-Country Team completed another successful season. The final record was 9 wins, 1 loss, good enough for another (we've lost count) Dual County Championship. Due to the one loss, the championship is held jointly with Bedford, but the team did a little extra to make up for that. They were State Champions in Class D at the state meet, the first time Weston has ever accomplished that feat in cross-country.

As in past years, Coach Donald Duncan was the secret to the team's success. "We couldn't have done it without the old slavedriver," the team agreed.

CHEERLEADERS

This fall's innovation of red and white polka-dotted bloomers was one of the many enthusiastic projects of the cheerleaders. The girls made the second annual TWIRP dance a colossal success and established it, along with the bake sale, as tradition.

The cheerleaders do understand that their purpose is to cheer, rather than to laugh and fool, despite some doubt on the part of occasional cynical spectators. The custom this year was to have dinner together before each game. Consequently cheerleaders were always well fed, and someone was usually miserably overstuffed. This explains some of the lack of coordination, and much of the giggling during halftime performances. Nonetheless, by the time of the Thanksgiving pep rally, "Thunderation" had caught on with band members, students, and faculty, evidence that there certainly was never a more popular squad.

MAJORETTES

Maybe the majorettes weren't always cooperative, reliable, faithful, conscientious, graceful or punctual, but they were always entertaining and smiling. They were a unified and enthusiastic group. The girls constantly offered original ideas for routines, a zealousness with which Janice was very patient. Janice herself was famous for her eager whistles while directing the band during practice and half-time. The majorettes brought blowers, shakers, and plenty of confetti to every game. And every Saturday they arrived with freshly polished boots, and sparkling tinsel on their batons.

The girls practiced nearly every weekday after school, sometimes during school, and also had regular pajama parties. Saturday mornings they were together again to prepare for the game with a delicious breakfast of Friendly hamburgers and frappes.

FIELD HOCKEY

The Weston field hockey team began the season with 70-odd balls and managed to lose most of them. Hockey balls, however, were all that the varsity lost. They finished a third undefeated season, having out-scored their opponents 26-1.

A bomb scare in late October sent left halfbacks and right wings flying barefoot out of the locker room, but, although they left their cleats and socks behind, the girls did bring out the largest crowd of spectators ever. In the midst of the fans was one of the team's faithful supporters, calling "allez-allez" with an enthusiastic Belgian accent.

At half time, the girls habitually sat in circles talking, their discussions ranging from great philosophic principles to the relative merits of an orange, and the progress of the game. Only 4 members of the Varsity returned this fall but Miss Butera developed a team strong in every one of the twelve positions.

Miss Cosgrove, meanwhile, filled the depleted ranks of her J.V.'s with new, young players, and taught them what it means to be a team. The J.V.'s came up with several original cheers, but the Varsity depended primarily on Leo, the successful mascot acquired at the season's end. The seniors leave Leo in the care of the coaches, to bring good luck and good humor to next year's team.

With a record of 10-6, this year's basketball team was the most successful one Mr. Manzo has ever had. It's Dual Country record of 10-4 gave Weston a solid third place finish. The team thrived on speed and quickness as it employed its zone press and fast break. High scoring co-captain Al Lazzari was frequently seen going in for an easy lay-up as his opponent helplessly trailed him. Sandy Townsend startled the spectators with his deft passing ability. Bob Bielaski left the crowds in awe with his "bombs." Jeff Neill and Andy Lambie controlled the action under both baskets throughout the season. The depth of the team was often shown as the second team also dominated their opponents much to the approval of the crowd. Next year's team has much to hope for with a nucleus of Andy Lambie, Chuck Averill, Sandy Townsend, and Bub McCarthy.

J.V. BASKETBALL

Despite the heroic efforts of Chuck Carr, Dave Kelly, Kit Robinson, and Charlie Ryder, this year's J.V. basketball team completed the season with a disappointing 2-14 record. These scores do not convey the many hours spent by the team practicing after school or the spirit with which it played. The valuable experience the members gained while working out on the courts promises a strong basis for next year's J.V. team and will provide several candidates for next season's Varsity team.

WRESTLING

Although the wrestling team's record was less than spectacular this year, it was still a successful season. Since this was only the second year of match competition, valuable experience was gained by everyone. Fortunately only two seniors will be lost at graduation, so the team will be much stronger in the future. Enthusiasm is slowly building up among the student body--next year the team may even get to use the gym occasionally. Finally, Coach Harris performed the miraculous feat of having both Brian Healy and Charley Foran get their hair cut. The team was hit fairly hard by injuries this year. In addition to the usual collection of sprains, bruises, and pulled muscles, Brian Healy suffered a broken toe and Lewis Lorini hurt his neck so badly he cannot wrestle again. But the team is still fighting, and next year the cafeteria will re-echo to the thuds and groans of Poopsie, Bopper, Big Os, Swivel-Hips and the rest.

ICE HOCKEY

Weston's Hockey Team, led by Co-Captains Frank Rowe and Steve Leach, finished the season with a 4-8-2 record. Although it wasn't a winning season, the team's spirit and determination brought them two victories against both Westwood and Bedford. The scoring was evenly divided throughout the team with Gary Osmond, Frank Rowe, and Paul Ronty taking the honors. Senior Steve Leach provided many thrills as he received several penalties. Seniors Tom Miller and Jeff Sugden also saw much action in each game. With several of the players returning, the team looks forward to a good season next year.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Only three members of last year's Varsity returned to the basketball team this winter. Ergo Miss Butera recruited new upperclassmen and members of the sophomore and freshman classes. Both J.V. and Varsity teams were small in size, but both had tremendous fighting spirit that brought them win after win, though probably the hardest fought game was the two point loss to Lincoln-Sudbury. Arch-rival Wayland was certainly no threat and Concord Academy was soundly beaten in spite of six-foot opponents like Sarah Brooks, who once played with the seniors.

It seems that appetities were as wholesome as spirit and the canteen truck supplied the team with vital nourishment after school. Juniors Judy Row and Barbara Crowley were high scorers respectively for Varsity and J.V. In fact, nearly everyone can boast a few points; this basketball season was definitely one of which to be proud.

KARTIKA SARI

Although the class of '68 had chosen the theme for the '67 prom early in the spring, it took several weeks before they decided upon the title "Kartika Sari," Japanese for "essence of the star." During April vacation, the decorations which had been talked about for so long, finally began to materialize, as faithful workers gathered each day at Melone's barn. Besides too many rainy days the class remembers those long lunch breaks everyone took at different times, the work that would just get started when everyone had to leave, and the distinguished blue caps they wore as they worked.

After weeks of planning and several late nights of last-minute decorating, the night of May 13th finally arrived. The cafeteria had been transformed into a Japanese garden surrounded by Japanese pagodas. A bridge which curved over a pond of white and yellow flowers formed the entrance to the gardens. Murals of Japanese maidens and huge grey birds covered the walls, while the windows were decorated with black "shoji" panels.

A huge yellow flower served as the throne, while the rest of the court stood on bridges extending over pools on either side. Ray Leach and his six-piece orchestra added the final touch to the setting. For the classes of '67 and '68, their guests and chaperones, the evening was one well worth all the frustrations and problems of the previous weeks.

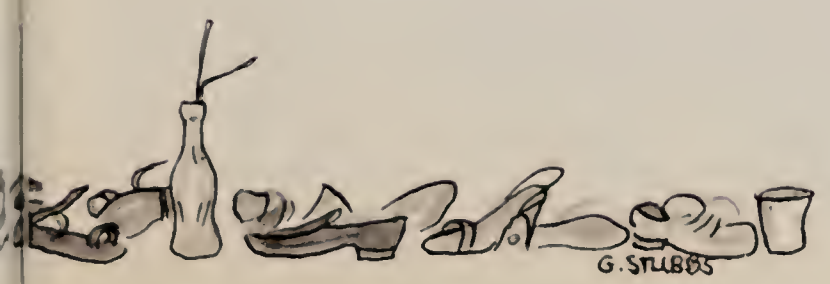
SOCIAL

ACTIVI

TIES



1967 will forever be remembered as the year of the computer. In addition to the IBM cards which newly entered our social lives, the Junior Prom, called "Saturnalia," reached back into Roman history for its inspiration, and the new beat found its way to Saturday night dances in the cafeteria.

SATURNALIA

Out of the many ideas suggested, "Saturnalia" was chosen by the class of '67 as the theme of its prom. Langs' basement and Orths' barn shared the clutter as enthusiastic workers spread their talent and paint not only on the decorations, but also on the decorators.

When the night of May 14th finally arrived, the cafeteria was no longer a lunch room but a Roman garden. As the couples passed through a tunnel, they entered the festival room. Grape arbors forming a canopy for the refreshment table, murals of Roman soldiers, graceful and impressive pillars, window arches, and a sculptured fountain in the midst of a small indoor garden transposed the room into a wonderland of royal purple, gold, and white. Queen Liz Aker reigned from her classic, elegant throne on the colonnade.

The couples danced to the music of the "Suburbanaires" until midnight, when the "glory that was Rome's" became a memory.

THE STAFF OF IMAGE '67 THANKS. . .

The Faculty and Administration of Weston High School. . .for giving us much-needed advice and suggestions; and for understanding with such patience the difficulties of our job.

Genie Fluke, Sue Carney, Betsy Johnson, Debby Shotwell, and Regina Sanders. . .for helping us to see 1967 through underclassmen's eyes.

The Class of 1967. . .for readily coming to our aid in emergency situations; and for devoting many enthusiastic working hours throughout the year.

Westwood Studios, our photographers. . . for their experienced advice, their high-quality, creative photography, and their cheerful cooperation.

Mr. Mitchell, our representative from our publishers, Pembrooke Company . . .for his never-ending patience, his immediate attention, his extensive knowledge of his field; and for his sincere interest in helping the staff.

Mrs. June Ellsworth, our advisor. . .for her generous dedication of many long hours to Image '67; for her productive imagination, showing us new approaches and new ideas; for her ever-present smile in the face of numerous obstacles; and for her help in every way possible in putting out Image '67.
